

Art in Politics

Is it possible to use art in order to manipulate the politics of a nation

Where is art in politics

For many people the thought of art being used in politics is something unreal and impossible to do however they couldn't be farther from the truth. Art has been used in politics for almost a hundred years, most commonly used in the form of propaganda in order to brainwash the masses of a nation to blindly follow the leadership of their rulers or to encourage the people of a nation to do something.

Notable people in propaganda

Some of the most notably people in the field of propaganda are:

1) Joseph Goebbels, the propaganda minister of Nazi Germany who managed to persuade an entire nation to not only follow Hitler's mad schemes to conquer Germany's neighbours, but to also begin a war against almost the entirety of the western world

2) Another very successful personality in the field of propaganda was Dmitri Shepilov the propaganda minister of the Soviet Union who succeeded to brainwash the entire population of the Soviet Union, over 150 million people into blindly following the will of their supreme leaders and bringing about radiological fanaticism for communism in the Soviet union that can still be seen today in the people of post-Soviet states such as Russia.
